

Alstom's ethics & compliance rules certified by Ethic Intelligence International

The quality of Alstom's ethics and compliance policy and of its implementation in the commercial activities of the company has been certified as corresponding to international best practices by the Ethic Intelligence International agency. As part of its ongoing actions to apply the highest standards in the area of Ethics & Compliance, the Group called on Ethic Intelligence International to audit and validate its rules and procedures governing relations with sales and marketing consultants and agents. The audit was conducted between September 2008 and March 2009 with the support of the Swiss audit company, SGS, and a pool of international recognised experts.

Patrick Kron, Chairman and CEO of Alstom, when receiving the certificate, indicated that this was a positive contribution in a very active policy to insure the Group is strictly respecting applicable regulations when conducting business worldwide and fully applying the principles stated in the Group's Code of Ethics.
